

« Many people think that an American hero is a cowboy, or it's Brad Pitt. And ... it's Justin Bieber for the... hum... teenagers. But in reality, when Obama became president, he became the new face of the United States. He became our hero.

The United States dealt with a lot of racist issues in the sixties and the seventies. And as we've slowly come out of this time period, Obama has led this change.

He has been the leader, as a black president, in stating that America is ready to change for the better. We are open to new things, we are open to new ideas.

And we are not this closed-off country that wants to be a super power but one that wants to accept and respect other countries.

With Obama being the American hero, he pushes for equality for all students to go to University.

He pushes for everybody to have health care and he pushes for the American Dream to become a reality for all people. And to this end, Obama has become the real new American Hero. »