

UK school enlists maths tutors online (Script : 0 min 6 -1min27)

- Now, a school in Britain is taking outsourcing to a whole new level by using call center staff in India to help with maths lessons here. ( plus dans le document final)
- Children at Ashmount primary school in North London have one to one computer sessions with tutors in the Punjab to supplement their school work.
- The BBC's Howard Johnson has travelled to Ludhiana in India to find out how the long distance lessons actually work.
- Four thousand miles away from London in North India's industrial heartland is Ludhiana, a city best known for its knitwear factories and manufacturing plants. But now it provides a new export, online tutorial in maths.
- If I asked you what is fifteen times three
- Delivered straight into British homes and classrooms.
- Err, forty-five
- Pupils and tutors communicate with each other using headsets and an interactive white board. Lessons are designed to cover UK primary and secondary school curricula and can be arranged 24 hours a day.
- Tutors here in Ludhiana earn around seven pounds an hour that's roughly three times the local minimum wage. Now the British-based company that offers this service says that they've all been security checked and must be former maths teachers are graduates.
- Ashmount primary in North London became the first school in Britain to use the service. But what do their pupils make of the e-tutors?
- It's fun because it's on a computer and not doing it down in your books.

Sur chaque table : papier brouillon+ papier bac / vérifier que le document + le son marche dans la salle

—Alterner la couleur des brouillons d'une table à l'autre

Faire entrer les élèves

—Sac sous le tableau, pas de trousse sur les tables, seulement de quoi écrire (+ mouchoirs, eau, à manger)

—Rappeler aux élèves d'éteindre leurs portables (surtout si il sonne pendant une épreuve de compréhension orale !)

Vérifier les identités des élèves (carte id/passeport + convoc)

Expliquer le déroulement de l'épreuve aux élèves ??

Ecrire le titre du document au tableau puis le lire

UK SCHOOL ENLISTS MATHS TUTORS ONLINE

1 minute

Mettre le document sans interruption. Quand le signal à la fin des 10 minutes retenti, les élèves doivent poser leur stylos et émarger en rendant leurs copies

—Ne pas oublier de faire émarger les élèves